APPENDIX B

SECTIONS 638 AND 639 OF THE CRIMINAL CODE

SUSPENDED SENTENCE AND PROBATION

638 (1) Where an accused is convicted of an offence and no previous conviction is proved against him, and it appears to the court that convicts him or that bears an appeal that, having regard to his age, character and antecedents, to the nature of the offence and to any extenuating circumstances surrounding the commission of the offence, it is expedient that the accused be released on probation, the court may, except where a minimum punishment is prescribed by law, instead of sentencing him to punishment, suspend the passing of sentence and direct that he be released upon entering into a recognizance in Form 28, with or without sureties,
(a) to keep the peace and be of good behaviour during any period that is fixed by the court, and

(b) to appear and to receive sentence when called upon to do so during the period fixed under paragraph (a), upon breach of his recognizance.

(2) A court that suspends the passing of sentence may prescribe as conditions of the recognizance that

(a) the accused shall make restitution and reparation to any person aggrieved or injured for the actual loss or damage caused by the commission of the offence, and

(b) the accused shall provide for the support of his and any other dependents whom he is liable to support, and the court may impose such further conditions as it considers desirable in the circumstances and may from time to time change the conditions and increase or decrease the period of the recognizance, but no such recognizance shall be kept in force for more than two years.

(3) A court that suspends the passing of sentence may require as a condition of the recognizance that the accused shall report from time to time, as it may prescribe, to a person designated by the court, and the accused shall be under the supervision of that person during the prescribed period.

(4) The person designated by the court under subsection (3) shall report to the court if the accused does not carry out the terms on which the passing of sentence was suspended, and the court may order that the accused be brought before it to be sentenced.

(5) Where one previous conviction and no more is proved against an accused who is convicted, but the previous conviction took place more than five years before the time of the commission of the offence of which he is convicted, or was for an offence that is not related in character to the offence of which he is convicted, the court may, notwithstanding subsection (1), suspend the passing of sentence and make the direction mentioned in subsection (1).

639. (1) A court that has suspended the passing of sentence, or a justice having jurisdiction in the territorial division in which a recognizance was taken under section 638 may, upon being satisfied by information or oath that the accused has failed to observe a condition of the recognizance, issue a summons to compel his appearance or a warrant for his arrest.

(4) The court may, upon the appearance of the accused pursuant to this section or subsection (4) of section 638 and upon being satisfied that the accused has failed to observe a condition of his recognizance, sentence him for the offence of which he was convicted.

APPENDIX C

CRIMINAL JUSTICE ACT, 1948

7. (1) Where a court by or before which a person is convicted of an offence (not being an offence the sentence for which is fixed by law) is of opinion, having regard to the circumstances including the nature of the offence and the character of the offender, that it is inexpedient to inflict punishment and that a probation order is not appropriate, the court may make an order discharging him absolutely, or, if the court thinks fit, discharging him subject to the condition that he commits no offence during such period, not exceeding twelve months from the date of the order, as may be specified therein.
(2) An order discharging a person subject to such a condition as aforesaid is in this Act referred to as "an order for conditional discharge", and the period specified in any such order as "the period of conditional discharge".

(3) Before making an order for conditional discharge the court shall explain to the offender in ordinary language that if he commits another offence during the period of conditional discharge he will be liable to be sentenced for the original offence.

(4) Where, under the following provisions of this Part of this Act, a person conditionally discharged under this section is sentenced for the offence in respect of which the order for conditional discharge was made, that order shall cease to have effect.

12. (1) Subject as hereinafter provided, a conviction of an offence for which an order is made under this Part of this Act placing the offender on probation or discharging him absolutely or conditionally shall be deemed not to be a conviction for any purpose other than the purposes of the proceedings in which the order is made and of any subsequent proceedings which may be taken against the offender under the foregoing provisions of this Act:

Provided that where an offender, being not less than seventeen years of age at the time of his conviction of an offence for which he is placed on probation or conditionally discharged as aforesaid, is subsequently sentenced under this Part of this Act for that offence, the provisions of this subsection shall cease to apply to the conviction.

(2) Without prejudice to the foregoing provisions of this section, the conviction of an offender who is placed on probation or discharged absolutely or conditionally as aforesaid shall in any event be disregarded for the purposes of any enactment which imposes any disqualification or disability upon convicted persons, or authorises or requires the imposition of any such disqualification or disability.

(3) The foregoing provisions of this section shall not affect—

(a) any right of any such offender as aforesaid to appeal against his conviction, or to rely therein in bar of any subsequent proceedings for the same offence;

(b) the revesting or restoration of any property in consequence of the conviction of any such offender; or

(c) the operation, in relation to any such offender, of any enactment in force at the commencement of this Act which is expressed to extend to persons dealt with under subsection (1) of section one of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1907, as well as to convicted persons.

APPENDIX D

SECTION 7 OF ONTARIO PROBATION ACT

7. (1) Where a person is charged with having committed an offence against any statute of Ontario the justice, magistrate or court before which such person is brought for trial may make such inquiries as he or it deems proper as to the character and reputation of the person charged and as to whether or not he has been previously convicted of any offence under the Criminal Code (Canada) or against a statute of Ontario, and if it appears that, regard being had to the age, character and antecedents of such person, that it is expedient that such person be released on probation of good conduct, such justice, magistrate or court may release the person charged under one or more of the following directions and conditions:

(a) that such person enter into a recognizance with or without sureties to keep the peace, and be of good behaviour;
(b) that such person be placed upon probation for such period and under such circumstances as the justice, magistrate or court before which he is brought may prescribe;

(c) that such person shall report from time to time during such period of probation to any probation officer that the justice, magistrate or court may designate;

(d) that such person shall be under the supervision and direction of such probation officer during the period of probation, and shall obey and carry out the instructions and directions of the probation officer;

(e) that such person pay the costs of the prosecution or some portion of the same within such period and by such installments as the justice, magistrate or court before which he is brought may direct;

(f) that such person make restitution and reparation to any person or persons aggrieved or injured by the offence charged, for any actual damage or loss thereby caused;

(g) that such person while on probation be ordered to provide for the support of his wife and any other dependant or dependants for which he is liable;

(h) that such person perform and carry out any other direction and condition that the justice, magistrate or court before which he is brought may prescribe and deem proper to impose.

(2) The justice, magistrate or court before which such person is brought, before directing the release or discharge of any such person, shall be satisfied that such person or his surety has a fixed place of abode or regular occupation in the county or place for which the justice, magistrate or court acts, or in which such person is likely to live during the period named for the observance of the conditions.

(3) If any justice, magistrate or court having power to deal with such person in respect of the charge against him, or if any justice, magistrate or court is satisfied by information on oath that such person has failed to observe any of the conditions of his recognizance, or has failed to observe and perform any direction or condition made in reference to probation or otherwise, a new information may be issued against such person for the original offence charged, and in addition an information may also be issued against such person for a breach of any of the directions and conditions so imposed.

(4) Upon summary conviction of a breach of any of the directions and conditions so made, such person may in addition to any penalty that may be imposed for the original offence, be liable to a penalty of not more than $50.

(5) Where the justice, magistrate or court finds that there has been a previous conviction against the person charged, the justice, magistrate or court may exercise the powers conferred by subsection 1, subject to the approval and concurrence of the Crown attorney. R.S.O. 1937, c. 395, s. 7.

APPENDIX E

PART XXI OF THE CRIMINAL CODE

PREVENTIVE DETENTION

Interpretation

659. In this Part,

(a) "court" means

(i) a superior court of criminal jurisdiction, or

(ii) a court of criminal jurisdiction;
(b) "criminal sexual psychopath" means a person who, by a course of misconduct in sexual matters, has shown a lack of power to control his sexual impulses and who as a result is likely to attack or otherwise inflict injury, pain or other evil on any person, and

(c) "preventive detention" means detention in a penitentiary for an indeterminate period.

HABITUAL CRIMINALS

660. (1) Where an accused is convicted of an indictable offence the court may, upon application, impose a sentence of preventive detention in addition to any sentence that is imposed for the offence of which he is convicted if

(a) the accused is found to be an habitual criminal, and

(b) the court is of the opinion that because the accused is an habitual criminals, it is expedient for the protection of the public to sentence him to preventive detention.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), an accused is an habitual criminal if

(a) he has previously, since attaining the age of eighteen years, on at least three separate and independent occasions been convicted of an indictable offence for which he was liable to imprisonment for five years or more and is leading persistently a criminal life, or

(b) he has been previously sentenced to preventive detention.

CRIMINAL SEXUAL PSYCHOPATHS

661. (1) Where an accused is convicted of

(a) an offence under

(i) section 136,

(ii) section 138,

(iii) section 141,

(iv) section 147,

(v) section 148, or

(vi) section 149; or

(b) an attempt to commit an offence under a provision mentioned in paragraph (a),

the court may, upon application, before passing sentence hear evidence as to whether the accused is a criminal sexual psychopath.

(2) On the hearing of an application under subsection (1) the court may hear any evidence that it considers necessary, but shall hear the evidence of at least two psychiatrists, one of whom shall be nominated by the Attorney General.

(3) Where the court finds that the accused is a criminal sexual psychopath it shall, notwithstanding anything in this Act or any other Act of the Parliament of Canada, sentence the accused to a term of imprisonment of not less than two years in respect of the offence of which he was convicted and, in addition, impose a sentence of preventive detention.

GENERAL

662. (1) The following provisions apply with respect to applications under this Part, namely,

(a) an application under subsection (1) of section 660 shall not be heard unless

(i) the Attorney General of the province in which the accused is to be tried consents,
(i) seven clear days' notice has been given to the accused by the prosecutor specifying the previous convictions and the other circumstances, if any, upon which it is intended to found the application, and

(ii) a copy of the notice has been filed with the clerk of the court or the magistrate, as the case may be; and

(b) an application under subsection (1) of section 661 shall not be heard unless seven clear days' notice thereof has been given to the accused by the prosecutor and a copy of the notice has been filed with the clerk of the court or with the magistrate, where the magistrate is acting under Part XVI.

(2) An application under this Part shall be heard and determined before sentence is passed for the offence of which the accused is convicted and shall be heard by the court without a jury.

(3) For the purposes of section 660, where the accused admits the allegations contained in the notice referred to in paragraph (b) of subsection (1), no proof of those allegations is required.

663. Without prejudice to the right of the accused to tender evidence as to his character and repute, evidence of character and repute may, where the court thinks fit, be admitted on the question whether the accused is or is not permanently leading a criminal life or is or is not a criminal sexual psychopath, as the case may be.

664. A sentence of preventive detention shall commence immediately upon the determination of the sentence imposed upon the accused for the offence of which he was convicted, but the Governor in Council may, at any time, commute that sentence to a sentence of preventive detention.

665. (1) Notwithstanding anything in this Act or any other Act of the Parliament of Canada an accused who is sentenced to preventive detention shall serve in a penitentiary the sentence for the offence of which he was convicted as well as the sentence of preventive detention.

(2) An accused who is sentenced to preventive detention may be confined in a penitentiary or part of a penitentiary set apart for that purpose and shall be subject to such disciplinary and reformatory treatment as may be prescribed by law.

666. Where a person is in custody under a sentence of preventive detention, the Minister of Justice shall, at least once in every three years, review the condition, history and circumstances of that person for the purpose of determining whether he should be permitted to be at large on licence, and if so, on what conditions.

667. (1) A person who is sentenced to preventive detention under this Part may appeal to the court of appeal against that sentence.

(2) The Attorney General may appeal to the court of appeal against the dismissal of an application for an order under this Part.

(3) The provisions of Part XVIII with respect to procedure on appeals apply to appeals under this section.

APPENDIX F

SECTIONS 43 AND 46 OF THE PRISONS AND REFORMATORIES ACT

43. The Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Ontario may appoint a Board of Parole for the said Province whose duty it shall be to inquire from time to time into the cases of prisoners sentenced to the Ontario Reformatory, the Andrew Mercer Reformatory or any industrial farm, and where as a result of such inquiry the Board thinks proper, it may permit prisoners serving indeterminate sentences to be paroled under conditions approved of by the Minister of Justice, and when the terms on which such prisoners have been paroled have been complied with, the Board may recommend for the consideration of the Minister of Justice the final discharge of such prisoners. R. S., c.163, s.43.

46. Every court in the Province of Ontario, before which any person is convicted for an offence against the laws of Canada, punishable by imprisonment in the common gaol for the term of three months, or for any longer time, may sentence such person to imprisonment for a term of not less than three months and for an indeterminate period thereafter of not more than two years less one day in the Ontario Reformatory instead of the common gaol of the county or judicial district where the offence was committed or was tried. R. S., c.168, s.46.

APPENDIX G

SECTIONS 151 AND 152 OF THE PRISONS AND REFORMATORIES ACT

151. Every court in the province of British Columbia, before which any male person appears over the age of sixteen years and under the age of twenty-three years is convicted of an offence against the laws of Canada, punishable by imprisonment in the common gaol for the term of three months, or for any longer term, may sentence such person to imprisonment for the term of not less than three months and for an indeterminate period thereafter of not more than two years less one day in that portion of Oakalla Prison Farm known as the Young Offenders Unit or in New Haven instead of the common gaol of the county or judicial district where the offence was committed or was tried, and such person shall thereupon be imprisoned in that portion of Oakalla Prison Farm known as the Young Offenders Unit or in New Haven as the case may be, until he is lawfully discharged or paroled pursuant to section 152 or transferred pursuant to section 153, and shall be subject to all the rules and regulations of the institution as may be approved from time to time by the Lieutenant-Governor in that behalf.

152. The Lieutenant-Governor may appoint a Board of Parole for the said Province whose duty it is to inquire from time to time into the cases of prisoners sentenced to that portion of Oakalla Prison Farm known as the Young Offenders Unit or to New Haven and the prisoners transferred under section 153, and where as a result of such inquiry the Board thinks proper, it may permit prisoners serving indeterminate sentences to be paroled under conditions approved by the Minister of Justice, and where the terms on which such prisoners were paroled have been complied with, the Board may recommend for the consideration of the Minister of Justice the final discharge of such prisoners.

APPENDIX J

INSTITUTIONAL VISITS IN BELGIUM AND ENGLAND

The members of the committee visited, in all, fifteen penal institutions in Belgium and England. These institutions are of various types and are designed to offer specialized treatment for different classes of offenders.

In Belgium we made a complete tour of the following three institutions:

1. A large Central Prison, which, among other interesting features, contained a medical psychiatric diagnostic centre.

3. An open institution for young adult males.

In England we visited the following:

1. A Borstal Reception Centre.

2. A Closed Borstal for older boys.
(3) An Open Borstal for older girls.

(4) A Closed Regional Training Prison.

(5) An Open Camp Prison (under the administration of the Regional Training Prison).

(6) An Open Regional Training Prison.

(7) A Closed Corrective Training Centre.

(8) An Open Central Prison.

(9) A Closed Central Prison (for prisoners serving preventive detention).

(10) A Detention Centre.

(11) A Prison for Mentally Ill Inmates.

(12) A Special Discharge Unit for Prisoners serving the last stage of preventive detention.

Some of these institutions are described in more detail below.

REPORT ON INSTITUTIONAL VISITS
(BELGIUM)

Institution: Marnelle, Belgium.
Type: Training Institution (open).
Type of Inmates: Selected first offenders under the age of 25 years. There are a few exceptions to this age limit.
Employment: Farming, maintenance, service and construction in the main. Vocational training in electricity, carpentry and construction.
Education: The emphasis is on practical training rather than academic training, but there is provision for study groups.
Recreational Program: Auditorium, football field and other sports facilities. An interesting feature of this institution is the utilization of the Scout Movement program. Inmates may voluntarily join a scout troupe and each troupe has its own private meeting place.
General: The inmates are divided into groups under supervisors and instructors. There is a certain degree of self-government allowed. The general atmosphere of the institution was one of apparently active interest and participation in the program.

REPORT OF INSTITUTIONAL VISIT
(England)

Institution: Blantyre House, Goudhurst, Kent.
Type: Detention Centre.
Capacity: 79.
Type of Population & Selection: This is an institution for youths 17-21 years of age.
Sentenced to:
Short periods of detention under the Criminal Justice Act. They are sentenced to the institution directly by the courts. The desirable sentence is three months, but some are sentenced as much as six months.
The inmates are supposed to be youths who have had no previous institutional experience.

Program:
The program in this institution is what is known as the “Short, Sharp, Shock”. The theory behind the program is that certain types of young offenders who have been unsuccessful on probation and who have had no previous institutional experience, may be deterred from further offences by a short period of very rigorous discipline.
The lads in the institution are kept at hard work and hard exercise all day under strict discipline. There is a short recreational period in the evening, followed by closely supervised study and an early “lights out”. From our observations we would conclude that a very faithful effort is being made to provide as rigorous a regime as is possible and yet keep the treatment humane. In true English fashion, despite all the rigid discipline, the inmates are still provided with a swimming pool, but, of course, the use of the pool is part of the physical education program under strict discipline.
The officials regard the project as an experiment and consider that it is too early to come to any conclusions. Tentatively, they feel that if the program is to be of any value it must be followed by a period of enforced supervision in the community. At the same time they are endeavouring to persuade discharges to accept the guidance of a local probation officer.

REPORT OF INSTITUTIONAL VISIT

England

Institution:
Latchmore House, Near Richmond, Surrey.

Type:
Borstal Reception Centre.

Capacity:
141. Population: 120

Type of Population:
This is one of the two Borstal Reception Centres for youths. The other centre is attached to Wormwood Scrubs.

Buildings & Facilities:
This is a former small country estate. The former home is used as an administration building. There have been other army style buildings erected. The property is surrounded by a wire fence.

Program:
Youths sentenced to a term of Borstal training are sent immediately from the local prison to the Reception Centre, where they remain for approximately eight weeks.
In this institution are concentrated the professional people, i.e. psychiatrists, psychologists and social workers.
The newcomer is subjected to a battery of psychological tests. He goes through the trades testing program in trades testing shops, spending a number of days in each shop. He is interviewed by psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers, educational counsellor and vocational counsellor. The social worker also visits the inmate’s home and in addition to obtaining further background material, attempts to interpret the Borstal program to the family.

When all testing and interviewing are completed, there is a staff conference at which the decision is made as to which of the several training Borstals the youth will be sent.

The whole process appeared to be exceedingly thorough. The philosophy behind the Reception Centre seems to be that there can be no adequate treatment without adequate diagnosis.

We were interested in the role of the social worker at the Reception Centre. The establishment calls for two social workers who may be either male or female. At Latchmore House both workers are female. As stated above, they interview the man in the institution and visit his home and in addition attempt at the Reception Centre to straighten out problems of the youth's relationship with his family. All the information that they obtain and the reactions of the youth to his problems is, of course, recorded for the benefit of the people in the Training Borstal who are to receive him.

The Housemaster at the Training Borstal is the key officer in carrying on a program of training and counselling, but special care is taken at the Reception Centre to send the youth to the appropriate training Borstal.

REPORT OF INSTITUTIONAL VISIT

(ENGLAND)

Institution: Rochester, Kent.
Type: Training Borstal (closed).

Type of Inmates and Selection: This Borstal receives young offenders about 17-19, who require close custody. They include absconders from approved schools and others who have failed on probation. They are selected after an eight weeks' period at the reception centre.

Employment: Maintenance, service and agricultural training in bricklaying, painting, carpentry and motor mechanics. The vocational training is apparently a six months' introductory course.

Education: Night classes; local school teachers (paid) come in. Housemasters act as tutors.

Meals: Served in dormitory or hall; all dine in association.

Sleeping: The institution is divided into four houses or "halls" with a housemaster and assistant housemaster and matron for each house.

Buildings: The Borstal is an old convict prison enclosed by a wall. The buildings are old, but kept in repair.

Recreational Facilities: Gymnasium; a large enclosed swimming pool; football fields — outside the walls; recreation room in each house.

Supervision and Security: As this is a closed Borstal, supervision is rather strict. Inmates move in groups, usually under control of a supervisor. Housemaster and assistant housemaster act as both counsellors and disciplinarians.
Punishments:  Disassociation with hard labour and exercise. We watched a group of about one dozen in disassociation undergoing disciplinary exercise under a P.T. instructor.

Grade:  The inmates go through progressive grade stages. They remain in the first grade usually 6 months. This is followed by a four month training grade. The next step is called senior training grade and is held until a youth is ready for the discharge grade. There are differences in privileges, freedom and responsibilities in the different grades. As a youth responds to treatment and increased responsibility, he is watched for discharge consideration. The average period served in this institution is approximately 22 months. Some are released under supervision as early as 16 months.

Role of Housemaster:  As stated above, the housemaster is counsellor, educational advisor and disciplinarian. He works a split shift, doing duty in the morning (mostly administrative work), has the afternoon free, and then returns to work with the boys in the house during the evening. The housemaster is considered by many people to be the key figure in the Borstal program of training. He will have under him some 50 to 75 lads whom he gets to know very well.

Role of Matron:  The matron has an office in the "house". She tends to such needs as mending, administering medicines, etc. The lads are free to visit her in her office to chat over any problems and she acts as a general "house mother".

Open Camps & Home Leases:  Occasionally groups are taken out in the summer time for weekend or full week camps. When boys are nearly ready for release, they are frequently sent away on five days home leave, to arrange for employment and to know their supervisor. Of 168 granted such home leave, only ten failed to return on time.

Escapes:  They do not use the word escape. The official term is "abscend". It was admitted that absconding presented a problem. However, no criminal charge is laid for an escape from a Borstal. The returned absconder, however, faces disciplinary action and may in all likelhood be sent to the correctional Borstal at Reading, where the discipline is more severe.

REPORT OF INSTITUTIONAL VISIT
(ENGLAND)

Institution:  East Sutton Park, Kent.
Type:  Training Borstal (open).
Capacity:  51.
Type of Inmates and Selection:  Girls selected from the closed Borstal at Aylesbury, mostly teenaged, usually petty offences.
Employment:  Maintenance, service and market gardening. There has been a lot of repair work done in that institution, which we were interested to learn had been done by the girls themselves. This work included bricklaying, concrete laying, carpentry work and painting.

Educational Classes and Library:  Same as in other institutions described.
Recreational Facilities: Common rooms; girls frequently take part in community affairs in the village of East Sutton.

Buildings: The main building is a very old country home, in which all the girls are accommodated in small dormitories. The Governor stated that the girls took very good care of the interior of the building and that there was no destruction of the woodwork and other interior decoration.

On the property is an old chapel which is shared by the institution and the people of the village.

Atmosphere: The institution appeared to us to be like a well-disciplined girls' boarding school.

REPORT OF INSTITUTIONAL VISIT
(ENGLAND)

Institution: Maidstone, Kent.

Type: Regional Training Prison (closed).

Type of Inmate and Selection: Inmates come on transfer from local prisons and the corrective training allocation centre. About half the population are star class prisoners, i.e. first offenders, the remainder are ordinary prisoners suitable for training and prisoners on a corrective training sentence.

Employment: Maintenance, service and industrial. There is a large print shop.

Under the administration of this prison is the "Aldington Camp", an open institution where the inmates are employed on construction and farm labour.

Educational Classes: Night classes—usual program as described in other institutions.

Library: Large library to which inmates are allowed free access during their free time, including evenings. We visited the library in the evening and saw several inmates reading. Inmate librarians handle the issuing of books.

Buildings: This is a very old prison, formerly a debtors' prison, yet the buildings are in a good state of repair. Within the prison walls is a very large Gothic chapel.

Recreational Facilities: Gymnasium, which also serves the purpose of an auditorium.

Medical and Psychiatric Facilities: At this institution we had the opportunity to spend some time with the medical officer. He is a full-time employee of the Commission. Except for a certain amount of court work, he devotes all his time to the inmates of the institution. He, like most of the medical officers in English prisons, has had psychiatric training. He prepares brief case histories on each inmate. The Governor ordinarily visits him each morning to discuss with him any inmate problems of a medical, psychiatric or social nature.

Punishments: Apparently there is little formal punishment other than the withdrawal of privileges. Serious offenders apparently are transferred back to the local prison.
Aldington Camp: This is a country estate with a small house which is used as an administrative building. Army style barracks have been built for the inmates. In addition to those living in the camp, some inmates are brought daily in trucks from the main prison at Maidstone.

Under arrangements made through the National Employment Bureau, some inmates are employed by local farmers. The employment of prison inmates by private employers presents no problem in England today, with its high employment level.

REPORT OF INSTITUTIONAL VISIT

(ENGLAND)

Institution: Leyhill, Glos.

Type: Central Prison (open).

Capacity: 320. Population: 225.

Type of Population & Selection: Prisoners of the Star Class (long sentences) who have served some portion of their sentence, have not less than six months to serve; includes lifers and prisoners with as much as six years of sentence remaining. The common period of time left to serve is about two years. The prisoners are all selected as suitable for "open" prison life.

Employment: Maintenance, service and industrial in the main. Nine men work for local farmers. They ride to work on bicycles on their own. Shops include a print shop, shoe manufacturing shop, tailor shop and carpenter shop.

Educational Classes: Night classes. Local teachers (paid) come in. Assistant Governors take some classes.

Library: Conducted as much like a public library as possible. Men come in noon hours and evenings. Two inmate librarians handle the issuing of books.

Meals: Cafeteria style. One meal hall. All dine in association. Come to mess hall in their own time from the dormitories.

Sleeping: Dormitories with rooms for "Leaders".

Buildings: The prison is part of a country estate. Buildings single story, concrete block; a former Army hospital. Plenty of floor area to meet all needs.

Recreational Facilities: Auditorium, Gymnasium, football field, cricket field, and a small wartime static water reservoir used as a swimming pool.

Supervision & Security: No movement during working hours except what is essential. Reasonably free movement otherwise. Less than ten escapes since prison opened in 1947. No escapes in last two years.

Atmosphere: Quiet, orderly, but not restrained; there is a fair proportion of older men; steady work in the shops; normally pleasant conversation in mess hall at lunch hour which we observed.

General: Four men were on "parole", that is, on leave for a few days to go home to make arrangements regarding their post-release plans.

| Institution: | Falsfield, Glos. |
| Type: | Regional Training Prison (open). |
| Capacity: | 187. |
| Population: | 112. |

Type of Inmate and Selection:
Inmates are transferred to Falsfield from the Corrective Training Allocation Centre and from local prisons. They are all, of course, men considered to be suitable for open prison treatment. Most of inmates are younger Star Class prisoners (first offenders). There are a few serving sentences of corrective training. The sentences being served range from 18 months to 3 years.

Employment:
Maintenance, service farming and vocational training.

Educational Classes and Library:
Same as described in other institutions.

Building:
The prison is part of a country estate. The main building in which all the inmates are housed is a former country home.

Recreational Facilities:
Common rooms; Sports fields.

Atmosphere:
Somewhat the same as the adjacent Layhill Prison. Inmates are perhaps more spirited, in that the group as a whole is composed of younger inmates.

REPORT OF INSTITUTIONAL VISIT

(ENGLAND)

| Institution: | Parkhurst, Isle of Wight. |
| Type: | Central prison (closed). |

Type of Population and Selection:
There are a few special medical cases in Parkhurst, but in the main the population is composed of habitual criminals, serving the second stage of preventive detention. They are received on transfer from local prisons after they have passed into the second stage and when there is accommodation at Parkhurst available. Mostly the prisoners have served 18 months to 2 years, as the first stage in a local prison before coming to Parkhurst.

Employment:
Maintenance, service and industrial in the main; some agricultural work.

Educational Classes and Library:
Not examined in detail, but apparently similar to other prisons.

Meals:
An unique arrangement for serving of meals exists in this prison. In that the inmates are given a choice as to whether they will dine in their cell or in association. They can change from one method to the other, provided the change is not requested too frequently. Small mess halls are provided for those who choose to dine in association. While the prison authorities wish to give the inmates the privilege of dining in association, they do not want to have large groups together and are very much opposed to the large mess hall.

Building:
This is an old convict prison with very high walls. There is a large area enclosed by walls sufficient to provide sports fields and garden ground. The garden plot is another unique feature of Parkhurst Prison. There are several hundred small garden plots which well-behaved inmates may have to work at as a hobby. If they do not care properly for their plot, the privilege is removed.

Atmosphere:
The atmosphere in this institution was restrained. While certain privileges such as the gardening mentioned above are allowed, the discipline appears to be strict and security is, of course, of paramount importance. The inmates move in small groups under the control of an officer.

Security:

Discipline:

Advisory Board:
The Advisory Board appointed under the Criminal Justice Act holds regular meetings at Parkhurst Prison to recommend whether or not a man serving a period of preventive detention will be promoted from the second to the third stage.

We had the opportunity to sit in on a Board meeting during our visit. Each member of the Board is provided with a case summary a few days before the Board sitting. The Governor and an Assistant Governor are present at the Board meeting.

If the Board promotes the man to the third stage, he is transferred to Bristol Prison and released at two-thirds of his sentence. If they refuse to promote him to the third stage, he remains at Parkhurst until he has served five-sixths of his sentence, when he is released on licence.

Assistant Governor:
An Assistant Governor in this institution appears to have a different function than that performed by Assistant Governors or Housemasters in the other institutions we visited. His role most nearly approximates the role of a Classification Officer in a Canadian penitentiary. He interviews newcomers, acts as counsellor and prepares the summary for the Advisory Board.

REPORT ON INSTITUTIONAL VISIT

INSTITUTION: BRISTOL,

(PREVENTIVE DETENTION DISCHARGE UNIT)

The following extract from the report of the Commissioners of Prisons, 1953, (pages 27-28) describes the interesting "Bristol Experiment":

"Much thought has been given in the penal systems of the world to methods of devising a halfway house between the restricted custodial conditions of the conventional prison and the uncharted freedom of the outside world, and many experiments have been made. In this country the system of home leave for Star prisoners is one step in that direction. The quite different problems of the confirmed recidivist who has served a long sentence have hitherto not been tackled by the administration in this country, but on 30th November, 1953, a beginning was made in what is probably the most thorough-going experiment in "pre-release" treatment which has hitherto been tried. Five men from Parkhurst prison, all of whom were serving sentences of at least 5 years' preventive detention, arrived in Bristol to take up residence in a hostel specially built in the grounds of Bristol prison. The hut contains a series of separate sleeping cubicles, a comfortably furnished common-room and a separate kitchen and bathroom. It is under the supervision of an Assistant Governor who acts as Warden, and pays close attention to the needs and social welfare of the men.

With the co-operation of the Ministry of Labour, the Central After-Care Association and the Principal Probation Officer for Bristol, and after months of careful preparation, the five prisoners were at once placed in work in the city. Each man draws his own wages at his place of work. Out of them, he is charged a fixed sum for his board and lodging, he is allowed reasonable expenses for his travelling and meals and personal expenditure, and he is required to make provision for dependents previously receiving National Assistance. The remainder of his wages is retained as compulsory savings against his final discharge.

The preventive detention men do not come in contact with the other prisoners in Bristol prison at any time. They go out to football matches, church or cinema, they are free to accept hospitality of their new friends in the city, attend evening classes, buy clothing, and generally to "train themselves for freedom through freedom". Broadly, they live and work as free men. The only sanction against misbehaviour is return to Parkhurst.

The Prison Commissioners regard this experiment with both hope and pride. It is in its early stages and is confined to men who are selected after having been at least three months in the second stage of their sentences of preventive detention. The men's reaction has been magnificent; they have been conscious that, notwithstanding their criminal records, they have been given an opportunity to make history, and are alive to the standard it is in their power to create. The first discharge left in February with an excellent testimonial from his employer, with 28 pounds saved up and a great parcel of sheets and towels he had bought for his wife. The Commissioners would add that the good results so far obtained would not have been possible without the preparation at Parkhurst prisons and the generous co-operation of many citizens of Bristol, some of whom have opened their homes to the men — hospitality of immense value especially over the Christmas period — and to the discreet reticence of the press. Any publicity which might lead to the identification of these men would gravely prejudice the scheme.

Once the hostel has been firmly established and a tradition created, the Commissioners hope to extend the experiment to include other recidivist prisoners."

APPENDIX K

CLASSIFICATION POLICY (C.L. 17/56)

1. Every inmate shall be interviewed by a member of the Classification Staff upon the day of admission to the penitentiary or as soon as possible thereafter.

2. It is desirable that the intelligence quotient of inmates be a matter of classification record. Where there is no record of this kind, and the Classification Officer considers it necessary, the inmate shall be tested or re-tested by a qualified person for intelligence quotient, using the Revised Beta or other suitable test.

3. An initial Interview Report (or a Re-admission Report) shall be prepared by the classification staff. Such reports shall be available at the first meeting of the Classification Board (or Treatment Team) at which the inmate's case is considered. Such report shall incorporate observations as to inmate-attitude, interests, aptitudes and capacity. Copies of the report shall be transmitted to Head Office. Decisions of the Classification Board shall be also forwarded, either in the body of the Initial Interview Report or in the next regular or special report prepared upon the inmate's case.

4. A Re-Classification (or Follow-Up) Report shall be prepared by the classification staff upon every inmate at the following intervals, approximately:
   (a) Five to six months after admission;
   (b) Every two years thereafter, during incarceration.

Every such report should be based on an interview and shall bring the case up-to-date by indicating present attitude, interests, accomplishments, plans, and shall incorporate modifications of the treatment plan. Such reports shall be transmitted to Head Office.

5. A Pre-Release Report and, where necessary, a Release Report (and/or a Post-Release Report) shall be prepared by the classification staff concerning every inmate discharged from the penitentiary, whether by transfer, Ticket of Leave or expiry. It shall summarize briefly the effect of incarceration to date, the inmate’s plans or problems. It should include reference to after-care agencies which the inmate presumably intends to contact, or a statement to the effect that the inmate has refused to accept referral to a job-placement or welfare organization. Such reports shall be transmitted to Head office, and may also be made available to such agencies as the Commissioner of Penitentiaries may approve from time to time.

6. Special Reports shall be prepared by the classification staff when requested by Head Office, the Warden, Deputy Warden, the Classification Board, Physician, Psychiatrist, or the Director of Remission Service, and, at the discretion of the classification staff, when a special or unusual situation warrants such a report. Contents of such reports shall depend on the terms of reference in the request, or upon the discretion of the classification staff.

7. Case-History-Taking marks the beginning of treatment. It is therefore desirable that there be a complete Case-History for every penitentiary inmate. Priority should be given to:

(i) Short-term first offenders;
(ii) Short-term inmates serving first penitentiary sentence;
(iii) Inmates upon whom histories have been specially requested;
(iv) Habitual Criminals and Criminal Sexual Psychopaths;
(v) Long-term inmates;
(vi) Other

A case-history shall deal as exhaustively as circumstances permit with the background and personality of the inmate concerned, endeavouring to reveal why the inmate possesses certain characteristics, how he acquired them, and how he may be expected to react to the conditions of prison life. It shall incorporate such pertinent data as may be acquired by investigation, observation, appropriate tests, and contacts with outside sources.

8. The classification staff shall interview inmates for appropriate reasons when requested to do so by the Warden or Deputy Warden, and shall report either verbally or by memo as directed.

9. The classification staff shall effect necessary liaison with after-care and welfare agencies, including representatives of government department concerned with employment and release.

10. It is desirable that classification staff-members participate in the interpretation of the program to visitors. It is desirable that requests for classification staff-members to act as escort be limited to those visitors who have a professional interest in the program.

11. The interest of classification staff-members in activities designed to improve the outlook, morale and rehabilitation of inmates shall not include engaging in the management of such activities to the detriment of the primary responsibilities outlined in this statement of policy.

12. Pursuant to Penitentiary Regulation 11 (Officers’ Handbook 1952) the Warden may permit Classification Officers to communicate with persons outside the penitentiary on behalf of inmates concerning matters essential to their rehabilitative treatment.
13. The classification staff shall have a two-fold function, comprising:
(a) diagnostic study, as described in the foregoing paragraphs, and without which there can be no organized or effective treatment program.
(b) treatment, as an integral part of the total institutional rehabilitative program.

14. The total institutional rehabilitative treatment program includes: classification and grouping of inmates according to their needs and considering available physical facilities, work, recreation, religion, education, medical attention, vocational training, counselling, psychological and psychiatric therapy and other socializing activities.

15. The initial contribution of the classification staff to the treatment program is the data acquired in its diagnostic study, in order to enable the Classification Board or Treatment Team to arrive at appropriate decisions in the planning of treatment for inmates individually and collectively.

16. The extent of actual participation in its treatment function shall be determined by the following factors:
(a) observed need in individual cases.
(b) qualifications of classification staff-members.
(c) availability of other specialist services, e.g. psychiatric.
(d) case-load, in terms of population and staff.

17. Having due regard for the foregoing factors it shall be permissible for classification staff-members to attempt therapy with individual inmates or groups of inmates in the fields of social case-work, educational and vocational counselling.

18. The Classification Officer shall refer to psychiatric services those inmates who, in his judgment, require such professional attendance. Where, in the opinion of the psychiatrist, a competent member of the classification staff can under direction usefully perform psychotherapy in specific cases, such work may be undertaken. Where psychiatric services are not available, authority will be required from Head Office before individual psychotherapy is attempted in each case.

19. A written report of classification activity shall be submitted at least once in each quarter. Such reports shall incorporate statistical information and descriptive paragraphs to reflect significant problems and developments. Originators of periodic reports should regard such reports as intended for record purposes, separate communications should be used to initiate specific action.

20. Thorough appraisal of officer applicants is essential to ensure selection of persons having the capacity to exert reformatory influence upon inmates. Classification staff-members may participate as consultants to the extent that the basic functions of the classification staff shall not be adversely affected.

21. It is recognized that well-trained staff is a basic requirement to effective treatment and orderly administration. It is desirable that classification staff-members participate in the training program as advisors and as lecturers to the extent that the basic function of the classification staff shall not be adversely affected.

22. Where the services of a fully qualified Classification Officer exist, further diagnostic tests may be administered and interpreted on his initiative or at the request of the Psychiatrist.

APPENDIX I

JUSTIFICATION FOR PAROLE *

The granting of parole may limit the effects of imprisonment, which are deleterious to the offenders and ultimately to his family as well, by providing an acceptable means of shortening the period of incarceration.

There is general agreement today that no country should intentionally expose its prisoners to penalties which would seriously threaten their physical and mental health. Opinion, however, still differs on the question whether imprisonment, being a penalty, should serve as such only by the deprivation of liberty, or whether it should entail a disagreeable manner of execution, in order to emphasise its penal character. It is nevertheless agreed that it is desirable that no discharged prisoner should leave the penal institution damaged by his experiences there; but, on the contrary, that the institution should have contributed to the reformation of the prisoner during his stay.

Even when organized in accordance with such views, a prison community inevitably breeds unfavourable conditions which have a harmful influence on a number of prisoners.

The conclusion is that society is obliged at least to minimize the impact of the process of deterioration produced by imprisonment.

The consequences of the prolonged imprisonment of husband, father and/or chief supporter of a family constitute an equally urgent problem. Such imprisonment may frustrate any possibility for the social and moral reintegration of a family facing the danger of permanent breakdown. Since many imponderable factors are involved in this process, even completely adequate material support given to dependents can only partially alleviate the situation.

Parole offers an opportunity for the practical application of rehabilitation programmes prior to the expiration of sentence. Any prisoner is, to a greater or lesser degree, moulded by rules and standards which are enforced either by the management of the penitentiary or by the prisoners themselves, but which prevail in an unnatural community, bearing only a superficial resemblance to free society. Modern penitentiary systems usually aim at confronting prisoners with norms that obtain in the world outside the prison walls, norms which some of the inmates had not known before or, at least, had not observed. Such efforts often have only a correspondingly superficial impact.

Upon return to society, the individual finds himself in a position to decide on his course, facing a much wider variety of modes of behaviour than the institution could offer him. Parole supervision, including the conditions of release which have been established, but especially the social case work involved in parole, assist the individual in making a realistic application in daily life of the behaviour standards advocated in the institution. Return to the institution may follow failure to observe these standards.

The prospect of parole encourages the prisoner to maintain maximum contact with the world outside the institution. Communication with the outside world, although limited, means much more to the prison inmate than is commonly assumed. In a modern penitentiary system a variety of means of communication is employed to maintain the necessary contact. Most important to the prisoner are those which give an opportunity to maintain contact with relatives and closest friends, notably visits and correspondence. Next in importance are the meetings with other persons who come to see the prisoner, as, for example, members of a prisoner’s aid society or an after-care agency, scientific investigators staying temporarily in the institution on a research job, etc.

Also important, though to a lesser degree than personal contacts, are those means of communication which keep the prisoner informed of events in the outer world, i.e. newspapers, magazines and radio. To this should be added the various means of entertainment, such as films, music, stage performances and lectures.

To the prisoner all these modes of contact have a certain emotional value, since they keep him keenly aware of the existence of a free society of which he continues to be a member in spite of his incarceration.

It is understandable that the precision of the possibility of being paroled reduces considerably the significance to the prisoner of the contacts and communications mentioned above. In such cases, although they are useful, because they render the prisoner’s isolation a little less unbearable to him, the prisoner knows that, by simply serving his time, he automatically will be discharged on a specified date, irrespective of the way in which he responds to the institutional programme. Thus contacts with the world outside the prison gain greater importance when the prisoner associates them with the possibility of being granted parole.

The prospect of parole stimulates the prisoner to derive maximum benefit from the facilities provided by the prison as preparation for parole. The individual prisoner may have available to him a variety of educational, vocational, religious, recreational or other services to which he will respond with apathy or enthusiasm, depending upon his general outlook. The individual who has the prospect of parole before him is more inclined to apply himself, consciously or unconsciously, to the utilization of such services.

Parole offers assistance to the individual upon release from prison. Through the supervising agent, the parolee may receive both material and psychological assistance. It is not unlikely that the assistance received, especially the advice and support given by the parole officer, may be a key factor in the successful post-institutional adjustment of many individuals.

The possibility of parole revocation acts as a deterrent. The merits of this conception of parole are presently in dispute. Although it is possible, even probable, that coercion may contribute to making parole a success, since it is unlikely that any man could be wholly indifferent to the risk of being sent back to prison, it is questionable whether the existence and application of coercive measures are in keeping with accepted principles of parole practice. It is agreed, however, that parole and after-care, as understood today, do not primarily derive their importance from the threat of possible parole revocation.

The possibility of parole may be an incentive to good conduct in the penitentiary. Undoubtedly the possibility of being paroled induces many prisoners to conform to prison regulations. It is known, however, that good conduct in prison often results from a superficial, sometimes simulated adjustment to prison rules, and is consequently of relatively little value to the person after release. Indeed, there is reason to believe that a less smooth adjustment may give evidence of the existence of a well-integrated personality. In any case, it is agreed that good conduct should not be the decisive factor for granting parole.

Parole provides a means whereby the prison term may be shortened. On the basis of observations made on the prisoner in the institution as well as other factors having to do with his social adjustment, it may be concluded that no purpose is served, either to the individual or to society, by his continued incarceration. While unconditional release would be unwarranted from the standpoint of social protection, the granting of parole, allowing for immediate return to prison if necessary, as well as supervision and assistance, would meet both the humanitarian and the penal objectives in shortening the original sentence.

Parole allows the timing of release to be related to the completion of vocational and other training programmes. Frequently, prison officials encounter the difficult problem of preventing the deterioration of prisoners who, having undergone complete vocational training in the institution, are not given the opportunity to use their newly gained abilities for long periods of time thereafter because of continued incarceration. Flexible release procedures associated with long-range parole planning enable the authorities to release the individual at the optimal time as concerns the skills he has acquired and his readiness to readjust to society.

Parole offers an opportunity for the prison administration to evaluate the influences of the penal system. Before the introduction of conditional release and parole there was very little possibility of carrying out large-scale investigations into the effect of detention upon the prisoner. Parole, with its after-care contacts, has made extensive and thorough explorations in this field feasible, because the parole agencies are designed to maintain close contact with the parolee and to watch his career for a period of time. Clearly, this situation offers an opportunity to gain an understanding of the extent to which the penal institution contributes to socially satisfactory behaviour in freedom, and, on the other hand, to determine whether inappropriate or insufficient prison treatment should be held responsible for post-institutional failures.

Parole is socially just in that it enables society to play an auxiliary role in the readjustment of the individual who became a criminal partly through short-comings in society itself. Certain existing social conditions, it is agreed, are determining factors of crime. Accordingly, the support that society may give to a discharged offender implies, in a certain sense, a concept of mutual responsibility.

Parole may serve as a means for mitigating excessively severe punishments inflicted under the influence of aroused public emotions. The extent to which popular indignation will influence the course and outcome of a trial is closely connected with the organization of criminal jurisdiction in the country concerned and it is therefore quite variable. Although most legislation provides for special procedures, such as pardon, to rectify a gross injustice, such provisions are not generally applied in cases where it is exclusively a question of unduly severe sentences. On the other hand, it is generally agreed that this is an improper use of parole, and that parole should be used exclusively as a social transitional measure and not to correct injustices, for which other measures should be applied.

Parole offers a means of protection to society from further criminal activity on the part of released offenders. Parole supervision and the power to return the individual to prison provide safeguards to the public during the critical period following the release from imprisonment. The safeguards, on the other hand, operate as potent influences on the individual during the readjustment period. It is generally held that the fact that parole implies a certain risk for society should not be considered as a valid reason against it, in as much as there are ethical grounds for taking a certain degree of risk if it is assumed that society itself has a partial responsibility for the causation of crime.

Parole offers the opportunity to re-evaluate the role of institutional treatment and the relative merits of alternatives. Parole, along with the companion service of probation, has demonstrated the efficacy of non-institutional treatment of offenders. These measures have led to a shift in emphasis including increased scepticism regarding the merits of imprisonment and greater reliance on non-punitive techniques.

APPENDIX M — TICKET OF LEAVE ACT

CHAPTER 264.

An Act to provide for the Conditional Liberation of Convicts.

SHORT TITLE.

1. This Act may be cited as the "Ticket of Leave Act." R.S., c. 197, s. 1.

ADMINISTRATION.

2. It is the duty of the Minister of Justice, or of such other member of the Government as may be designated by the Governor in Council, to advise the Governor General upon all matters connected with or affecting the administration of this Act, 1931, c. 13, s. 1.

TICKET OF LEAVE.

3. (1) The Governor General by an order in writing under the hand and seal of the Secretary of State may grant to any convict, under sentence of imprisonment in a penitentiary, gaol or other public or reformatory prison, a licence to be at large in Canada, or in such part thereof as is mentioned in such licence, during such portion of his term of imprisonment, and upon such conditions in all respects as to the Governor General may seem fit.

(2) The Governor General may from time to time revoke or alter such licence by a like order in writing. R.S., c. 197, s. 3.

Revocation or alteration of same.

Sentence deemed to continue although execution is suspended.

4. The conviction and sentence of any convict to whom a licence is granted under this Act shall be deemed to continue in force while such licence remains unforfeited and unrevoked, although execution thereof is suspended; but, so long as such licence continues in force and unrevoked or unforfeited, such convict is not liable to be imprisoned by reason of his sentence, but shall be allowed to go and remain at large according to the terms of such licence. R.S., c. 197, s. 4.

Form of licence.

5. (1) A licence under this Act may be in the Form A in the Schedule, or to the like effect, or may, if the Governor General thinks proper, be in any other form different from that given in the Schedule that he may think it expedient to adopt, and contain other and different conditions.

(2) A copy of any conditions annexed to any such licence, other than the conditions contained in Form A, shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament within twenty-one days after the making thereof, if Parliament be then in session, or if not, then within fourteen days after the commencement of the next session of Parliament. R.S., c. 197, s. 5.

REVOCATION AND FORFEITURE.

6. If any holder of a licence under this Act is convicted of any indictable offence his licence shall be forthwith forfeited. R.S., c. 197, s. 6.
7. When any holder of a licence under this Act is convicted of an offence punishable on summary conviction under this or any other Act, the justice or justices convicting the prisoner shall forthwith forward by post a certificate in the Form D in the Schedule to the Secretary of State, and thereupon the licence of the said holder may be revoked in manner aforesaid. R.S., c. 197, s. 7.

8. (1) If any such licence is revoked or forfeited, it is lawful for the Governor General by warrant under the hand and seal of the Secretary of State to signify to the Commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Ottawa that such licence has been revoked or forfeited, and to require the Commissioner to issue his warrant under his hand and seal for the apprehension of the convict, to whom such licence was granted, and the Commissioner shall issue his warrant accordingly.

(2) Such warrant shall and may be executed by the constable to whom the same is given for that purpose in any part of Canada, and has the same force and effect in all parts of Canada as if the same had been originally issued or subsequently endorsed by a justice or other lawful authority having jurisdiction in the place where the same is executed.

(3) Any holder of a licence apprehended under such warrant, shall be brought as soon as conveniently may be before a justice of the peace of the county in which the warrant is executed and such justice shall thereupon make out his warrant under his hand and seal for the recommittal of such convict to the penitentiary, gaol or other public or reformatory prison from which he was released by virtue of the said licence, and such convict shall be so recommitted accordingly, and shall thereupon be remitted to his original sentence, and shall undergo the residue of such sentence that remained unexpired at the time his licence was granted; but if the place where such convict is apprehended is not within the province, territory or district to which such penitentiary, gaol or other public or reformatory prison belongs, such convict shall be committed to the penitentiary, gaol, or other public or reformatory prison for the province, territory or district, within which he is so apprehended, and shall there undergo the residue of his sentence as aforesaid. R.S., c. 197, s. 8.

9. (1) When any such licence is forfeited by a conviction of an indictable offence or other conviction, or is revoked in pursuance of a summary conviction or otherwise, the person whose licence is forfeited or revoked shall, after undergoing any other punishment to which he may be sentenced for any offence in consequence of which his licence is forfeited or revoked, further undergo a term of imprisonment equal to the portion of the term to which he was originally sentenced and which remained unexpired at the time his licence was granted.

(2) If the original sentence in respect of which the licence was granted was to a penitentiary, the convict shall for the purpose of serving the term equal to the residue of such original sentence be removed from the gaol or other place of confinement in which he is, if it is not a penitentiary, to a penitentiary by warrant under the hand and seal of any justice having jurisdiction at the place where he is confined.
Term of imprisonment.

(3) If he is confined in a penitentiary, he shall undergo a term of imprisonment in that penitentiary equal to the residue of the original sentence.

(4) In every case such convict is liable to be dealt with in all respects as if such term of imprisonment had formed part of his original sentence. R.S., c. 197, s. 9.

REPORTING TO POLICE.

10. (1) Every holder of a licence who is at large in Canada shall notify the place of his residence to the chief officer of police, or the sheriff of the city, town, county or district in which he resides, and shall, whenever he changes such residence within the same city, town, county or district, notify such change to the said chief officer of police or sheriff, and, whenever he is about to leave a city, town, county or district, he shall notify such his intention to the chief officer of police or sheriff of that city, town, county or district, stating the place to which he is going, also, if required, and so far as is practicable, his address at that place, and whenever he arrives in any city, town, county or district he shall forthwith notify his place of residence to the chief officer of police or the sheriff of such last-mentioned city, town, county or district.

(2) Every male holder of such a licence shall, once in each month, report himself at such time as may be prescribed by the chief officer of police or sheriff of the city, town, county or district in which such holder may be, either to such chief officer or sheriff himself, or to such other person as he may direct, and such report may, according as such chief officer or sheriff directs, be required to be made personally or by letter.

(3) The Governor General may, by order under the hand of the Secretary of State, remit any of the requirements of this section either generally or in the case of any particular holder of a licence. R.S., c. 197, s. 10.

OFFENCES AND PENALTIES.

11. (1) If any person to whom section 10 applies fails to comply with any of the requirements thereof, he is in any such case guilty of an offence against this Act, unless he proves to the satisfaction of the court before which he is tried, either that, being on a journey he tarried no longer in the place in respect of which he is charged with failing to notify his place of residence than was reasonably necessary, or that, otherwise, he did his best to act in conformity with the law.

(2) On summary conviction of any such offence the offender is liable, in the discretion of the justice, either to forfeit his licence, or to imprisonment with or without hard labour for a term not exceeding one year. R.S., c. 197, s. 11.

12. Any holder of a licence who
(a) fails to produce the same whenever required so to do by any judge, police or other magistrate, or justice of the peace, before whom he may be brought charged with any offence, or by any peace officer in whose custody he may be, and fails to make any reasonable excuse for not producing the same; or
(b) breaks any of the other conditions of his licence by an act which is not of itself punishable either upon indictment or upon summary conviction; is guilty of an offence upon summary conviction of which he is liable to imprisonment for three months with or without hard labour. R.S., c. 197, s. 12.

13. (1) Any peace officer may take into custody without warrant any convict who is the holder of such a licence
(a) whom he reasonably suspects of having committed any offence; or
(b) if it appears to such peace officer that such convict is getting his livelihood by dishonest means;
may take him before a justice to be dealt with according to law.
(2) If it appears from the facts proved before the justice that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the convict so brought before him is getting his livelihood by dishonest means such convict shall be deemed guilty of an offence against this Act, and his licence shall be forfeited.
(3) Any convict so brought before a justice of the peace

APPENDIX O

VISITS TO INSTITUTIONS BY REMISSION SERVICE REPRESENTATIVES

1953, 1954 & 1955

The tables below show the number of visits, interviews held, and days spent by Remission Service Representatives in the penitentiaries and other penal institutions. In addition to these visits, the Director and Assistant Directors have made special visits to some of the major institutions to discuss problems of clemency and parole with the Wardens and other senior officials.

It has been the practice of the Remission Service not to have a representative interview inmates in the Ontario Provincial Institutions. In the cases of inmates serving sentences in Ontario Provincial institutions, special reports are obtained from the Chief Parole and Rehabilitation Officer of Ontario.
